Consultants Are Appointed
To Plan Post-War Careers
For Air Force Personnel

By JAMES COOK

OTTAWA, March 3.—(CP)—Air Minister Power said yesterday in the Commons that "personnel consultants" have been appointed to discuss post-war careers with R.C.A.F. personnel, helping men who want to help themselves in getting re-established after the war.

The glamor of peace should replace the glamor of war, and young Canadians now in the service should be encouraged to get in the development of Canada, he said. They should be taught to think of themselves as ready to accept duties and responsibilities as heavy as those they have had.

"The great adventure—the strenuous one of living for our country—will be only beginning," said Mr. Power said he now is looking for an officer with fighting experience and able to speak "the overseas man's language" to act as a consultant. The first items of returning men to civil life on a priority basis were being considered, and the men in uniform will be found for them.

Discussions are to be continued on the $3,650,000 war appropriation resolution.

Air force air estimates continued during the evening sitting, and Friday the house will resume its post-war structure development estimates.

Maj. Power said it was common to suggest that men be kept in the service until work is found for them.

"I have no objection that as a man is kept in, but I fear it will not work out in practice," he continued.

MAKE PREPARATION

The service departments should make preparations for the civilian end of war, and men should be made to the extent they could be made while he was in the service. After the last war, men had been eager to get out of uniform. When the time comes to get out, however, combat the enemy was gone, men became bored and did not want to remain in the uniform. In addition this time is to help men and women in the air force to help themselves.

"Our men and women are not the type who want to become permanent members of the service, they want to stand on their own feet."

The R.C.A.F. planned to provide them with information, advice and services so they might be as self-reliant in peace as they had been in combat.

NO JOB PLACEMENT

"This is not the job placement," he said. "It is to those who take advantage of it may have something of value to offer instead of being dependent on a job." Maj. Power said.

"Many men who have survived the strains and hazards of a long tour of combat. Nothing can be more satisfying than to return from the travels and then a goal towards which they can plan to provide. This goal we intend to provide."

"The results of the R.C.A.F. plan of personnel selection have been excellent in terms of a civil occupation."

THIS ENABLES YOU TO

"This enables you to indicate to the service when he starts, having regard to his physical aptitude and training, in relation to men already employed in various types of posts in the service trades. Thus, in choosing a career, he can judge for himself the type of work for which he will meet in various vocations."

Many employers had been question and represented problems, financial, business and personnel group had been consulted on the plan.

CONTINUOUS TRAINING

Men returning with extensive service in the R.C.A.F. were being trained as consultants. A first group which has completed training is the "anguard" of a larger group of officers who will be trained to R.C.A.F. posts both at home and overseas to aid men and women plan careers.

EDUCATIONAL

Technical courses would be provided to suit the career plan, and any man and woman will be able to attend, even though in a part-time activity in keeping with the plan. Many courses already available are being developed.

OVERSEAS PRIORITY

Repatriation was a special problem that many boys in the R.C.A.F. had. The first problem in conception of what the struggle of life could be. Arrangements were made to facilitate the repatriation of Canadian serving with that force.

OVERSEAS PRIORITY

Repatriation should be given to men serving overseas, but this was not always possible. Under a suggested point system, priorities might be worked out on the age, number of dependents, and age number of service, and dependent children.

But this system was complicated, and the men in the forces could not be put in about 100 priority groups with one man being put off by a great number.

Flt. Lt. James Sinclair (L.) Van covered to be led by men over whom he wanted to be led in operational experience. When veterans with distinguished records in the service were returned to the posts they should be succeeded to men with at least one operational tour.

SUGGESTS POINT PLAN

For DEMOBILIZATION

OTTAWA, March 3.—(CP)—When he described attempts by the R.C.A.F. to decide on a fair system of priority demobilization after the war, Air Minister Power suggested to the committee that study might be made of a British Committee party pamphlet on the subject.

He said that there had not been one criticism of it.

The plan operates on a point system, with family responsibility and other factors piling up points total.

Jottings From Session

OTTAWA, March 3.—(CP)—Nearly 130,000 persons in districts around Quebec city signed petitions protesting against any form of immigration to Canada, Wilfrid LaCroix (L., Quebec Montmorency) said yesterday in the Commons.

The petitions, circulated by St. Jean Baptiste societies, were signed by men headed by Mr. Le Croix who said they signed the petitions were only a portion of the persons in the province who oppose immigration.

Chain Letters Again

The chain letter nuisance has started again in the Edmonton district, and steps should be taken by the post office department to put a stop to it.

It is bad enough that these ridiculous epistles should be allowed to worry the superseding post office, but the threats of foul play if the "chain is broken" is worse.

It is worse that they should represent a flagrant waste of paper, stamp-money, time and energy.

But, as one Edmonton mother declares to The Bulletin, the worse feature is that they are being sent to the people who have not even been checked. His friends in the other provinces would particularly like to know. So would all members in the House of Commons.

Mr. Bracken said, "proposes to see that these rights are protected."

This is at least different. Across eight provinces the Government has been engaged in dealing with Quebec, but, extraneously, and not extravagantly, Canada, it has been said, was ruled by Quebec. Mr. Bracken rings the gong on these allegations. Quebec, he says, has not got just, and he proposes to see that it gets it in the full measure provided in the constitution.

It is unfortunate that Mr. Bracken did not specify in what particulars he would take the concessions to Quebec or the concessions of what is due to that province. What does he mean by "centralized," and what privileges does he want conferred upon the people of Quebec, as distinguished from the rights and privileges enjoyed by Canadians elsewhere?

It is bad enough that these stupid letters should get down to cause and tell the public when to stop them, but when they have been checked, they have been checked. His friends in the other provinces would particularly like to know. So would all members in the House of Commons.

Round-about reports from Ankara are that the Turks want the Allies to present them with flocks of planes and fleets of tanks and then wait until they make up their minds whether or not they will go to war with the Axis powers. The Sultan has gone, but the Turks are still there.

Marshall's islands base, fell to the Turks, and the war was still lost, and in less time than had been anticipated. It seems clear that the Japanese were cut-gutted as to the strength of their defences and the size of the garrisons they required to hold that key group in their strategic island outposts. They had been building fortifications there for twenty years, and lost the main bases in half that many days.

Halifax Plan Is "Too Rigid"

English Publications Are Critical of Envoy's Views

By GRANT DEXTER
In his defense of the critics of the Halifax proposal in the United Kingdom are The Spectator and the Manchester Guardian. The Guardian, in particular, is of the opinion that regardless of what the Dominions think of centralization, the English would be strengthened if not abundantly sufficient. If not, any attempt to draw the bonds tighter of the world would be before the eyes of the world.

The Guardian, on January 26, after summarizing the Halifax speech, pointed out that the context almost justified such a proposal, but that the Commonwealth was standing as a "phalanx of eleven yeomanry and embattled, and that, even if we have to look forward to a world of 'power-politics' and 'moral-politics,' it would still be better to confine it to the English."

It is said that the English are agreed that, if the Commonwealth is to be a power, it will be with the English, and that the English would be better equipped than the present Commonwealth.

The Spectator said, "anyone who thinks that the fundamental changes assumed a considerable responsibility."

It is certain, as the English say, that any attempt to impose a federal system on the British Commonwealth would prove a disaster.

King's speech indicates, however, that he would be better equipped than the present Commonwealth.

It is a system which, so far, has not been adopted by any of the weaker, with her, that would be given the foundation of peace and prosperity of the weaker peoples.

there is one capital and compelling truth. If the states of the Commonwealth are animated by the same ideals and the same purposes, and have the same aims, then nothing is abundantly sufficient. If not, any attempt to draw the bonds tighter of the world would be before the eyes of the world.

The Guardian, on January 26, after summarizing the Halifax speech, pointed out that the context almost justified such a proposal, but that the passage suggested that Lord Halifax wants more than co-operation. On this point, the English are agreed that the Commonwealth must be more than a mere organization by which the Dominions are to be held together, and for which each of them has to take responsibility. It is a matter of full danger.

"That is why under all circumstances, the Commonwealth must be in the hands of the British government, and that is why the English must be made of the judgment and experience of the other Dominion governments, and that is why the English must insist and others must discuss discussion and consultation, and naturally the voice of the Dominions must be heard. The English must regard to policy in those regions in which their colonies are situated."

"That is why under all circumstances, the Commonwealth must be in the hands of the British government, and that is why the English must be made of the judgment and experience of the other Dominion governments, and that is why the English must insist and others must discuss discussion and consultation, and naturally the voice of the Dominions must be heard. The English must regard to policy in those regions in which their colonies are situated."

It is said that the English are agreed that, if the Commonwealth is to be a power, it will be with the English, and that the English would be better equipped than the present Commonwealth.

The Spectator said, "anyone who thinks that the fundamental changes assumed a considerable responsibility."

It is certain, as the English say, that any attempt to impose a federal system on the British Commonwealth would prove a disaster.

King's speech indicates, however, that he would be better equipped than the present Commonwealth.

It is a system which, so far, has not been adopted by any of the weaker, with her, that would be given the foundation of peace and prosperity of the weaker peoples.

Strengthened

The impression, on which our efforts in the war and our declarations of policy have had some effect, but it would be strengthened if we made it known that our policy in the Commonwealth is based on the agreement of Pacific and Atlantic nations. Great Britain is at once a European and a non-European power. None of the other Dominions is in that position.

80 Tons of Bombs
Hit Jap Airfields

WASHINGTON, March 3—United States army bombers dumped nearly 80 tons of bombs on four airfields on Japanese-held atolls in the Marshall Islands Tuesday. The surprise anti-aircraft fire was yesterday the only sign of resistance of the 10,000 men of the 10th Legion, which they now respectively represent.

It was seconded by Mayor A.

Five Major Raids
Made in February

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
LONDON, March 3—(CP)—<

Today's Sport Parade

By Jack Cuddy

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

Copyright 1944 by British United Press

NEW YORK, March 3.—During the past six weeks little Eddie Arcaro has ridden from the shadows of despondency back to the sunshine of top adulation. The olive-skinned jockey from Kentucky, who was grounded for a year because of rough riding, proved a dismal flop in his comeback attempt during the early Florida racing season. He just couldn't win.

Criticism of Arcaro's repeated failures became so general and so loud that on Jan. 12 he defended himself at Miami, explaining to the press that he had won a couple of races in Florida. Piorini's reason because of the poor ebb of horses he had been given. He grimly described the long lay-off as "a bad ruined his touch."

Since that dismal start, Arcaro has come back in sensational style. He has won his home so many winners that Stars is brilliant riding the turf world. Last Saturday, for example, he showed his form in the $15,000 Flamingo Stakes at Hialeah with the Greenies Stable. Up, a colt so lightly regarded that he was returned his backers $18 for $2.

FOUR WINNERS

ON Monday the Hialeah chalkboard showed Arcaro brought home four winners in four starts. Tuesday he had a place in the winner's circle in both of the daily double with Stars at Nigh and Stars. Wednesday he was disappointed Wednesday when unable to get winning speed out of Warren Wright's colt in a six-furlong race. The colt, a 1-year-old, Pencile, a Kentucky Derby hopeful, had a bird-like hind limb.

Arcaro, long regarded by many competent observers as one of the best jockeys in the country, has produced in 20 years, will face a major test of his trackcraft when he rides the 100th winner when he tries to win with a longshot, the Greenie Stable's Four.

Victory Saturday would give Eddie a repeat "slam" of the two Florida classics — Flamingo and Pencile. The two events in 1942 the last year in which they were staged. In '42, he won the first and last, and then registered a surprising triumph in the Wistner on The Rhyme.

SUN AGAIN FAVORITE

FOUDRE, Eddie Arcaro up to the post Saturday at the probable long price of about 10-1, will be the favorite in Sunday's Sun Derby to be the favorite of the stakes of his impressive victory in the McLean Memorial, and because he will be ridden by Tom McCloskey, leading jockey of the Florida season.

Other highly-regarded Widener colts are the $25,000 New Orleans Handicap, stretching first 1 1/2 miles, and the colt who tied with Prince Quillie for the 1943 cup title. A dangerous dark horse is Jim Quillie, a quest who, we hope, the Biscayne purse impressively Saturday over the mud.

We'd like to see Arcaro win this race on Four Freedoms; but we're putting a couple of odds on Abigail.

Cuban Refuses

Rickey's Offer

SAN JUAN, March 3.—Branch Rickey's Branch Rickey may have another holdout on his hands if Luis Rodriguez Olmo, who batted .303 for the Brooklyn Dodgers in 57 games last year, goes through his training camp.

The outfielder who divided his time between the Brooks and their Monarchs in the Negro National League in 1943, said Thursday he would cable Rickey that he was not interested. It was not enough. It was understood Olmo had been offered $10,000 for the 1944 season and was asking $8,000.

From medieval times, Estonia was fought over by Germans, Swedes and Russians.

Percy Page's Comets will make the first start in the playdowns in the season's second-half of the double-header when they play the Cardinals in their regular and Westmen high eagers.

Comets, successors to the Grads of the former Comets, in Edmonton's basketball history, have been holding weekly contests in the city since the arrival of the new Noel MacDonald Robertson, Etta Dann, Frances Gordon, Peggy Collyer and Margaret Patterson.

Tom McCloskey, Jim Shropshire, Harry Moore, Jim and Bob Fleming and Alex Fellow are included in the Comets which will oppose the

CANADIAN SPORTSHOTS

By CHARLIE EDWARDS

TORONTO, March 3.—(AP)—The Canadian new sport's play is in favorable contrast to the former grueling and dangerous contests of all-star hockey teams with regard to mass participation. In the first year of the new sport, eliminations will begin in sections, platoons and companies.

"If I play at all it will be for Mr. Mack," said the much-trader right-hander, who almost pitched Detroit to victory in the 1940 All-Star game. "I'm sure I'll mean, I'm sure I'd like it if he did. If everybody's turned out there, then me, I think it'll stand every day."

Thirty five years old and 4' 7 in. tall, the 100-pound Edwards, like every man will have benefits of speed and progress of distict winners will be determined by the skill of every man.

District hockey teams are under way in the commando commands.

formed as much as possible.

Synthetic resins are now supplied to life boats for making set water drinkable, a pound of resin treating from four to six pints of water.

"All he did was talk baseball," signed the 38-year-old manager. "I can't get a word in edgewise."

Boho, a trim 206 and the picture of health, explained he didn't want to make up his mind "until I see if I can get in the game."

Both of us assumed newspapermen that salary didn't even figure in the game.
